

ALEXANDRIA.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 11.

ME. CHANDLER, the man through whose ius'rumentality the electoral vote of Florida was etolen in 1876, is now so desirous of a "free vote and a fair count" in the South, that he yesterday introduced a bill in the U.S. Senate which provides that whenever in any congressional district in any State ten voters from each county shall make an affidavit that they believe the election will be unfair if held by State officers, they may by petition to the judge of the United States circuit ask and obtain United States officials to conduct such election. The bill also provides for the registration of voters and for the preservation of such registration books; also that the commissioners so appointed shall appoint inspectors, bailiffs, &c. Until now it has always been held that the section of the Constitution which provides that Congress may alter the times, places and manner of holding elections for congressmen, means that the times relate to the days, the places to the voting precincts, and the manner to the viva voce or ballot system. But Mr. Chandler is the great modern expounder of the Constitution, and before him the disciples of Story bow their heads in abject humiliation.

JEFFERSON DAVIS was buried to day in the sunny South, the land he loved, and for which he fought and lost so much. Little recks he whether the flag at the War Department flies at half or full mast in respect of his memory; but a flag in the hearts of millions of his glorious but short-lived nation is at half mast, and throughout the limits of that nation, which has passed away, it will always so fly at the mention of his name. Mr. Davis was a great general and a great statesman, and was a good man. Had he been worse it would have been better for him. He was the soul of the war. If he had assumed the power of a dictator he would have been successful, but being governed by those principles of constitutional liberty which had induced him to espouse the cause of his State, he clung to them to the last and was dragged down with them, for principles, no more than iews, heve any part in the game of war.

THE NEW YORK Herald says: "It would be impossible at such a time for the government to lower its flags to half-mast. The dignity of the nation would not permit it." And yet the Herald also says the war is over and done, and that it is time for bygones to be bygones. What Mr. Davis did, he was taught to do by the text books used at West Point up to the breaking out of the war, and what many of the best constitutional lawyers of the North thought he was justified in doing. And why the dignity of a nation that would permit a fraudulently elected President to hold office for four years, would not permit a flag to fly at half-mast for the death of a man who had atyears, would not permit a flag to fly at halftempted to practice only what had been taught him at the nation's military school, is what few people in one section of the country can understand.

AMONG THE petitions recently introduced in the U.S. Senate was one from John Pope Hodnett, of Washington, D. C., asking for an investigation of the conduct of Pension Commissioner Raum in calling him a "bulldozer" when he waited upon him to ask official patronage in the interest of the united labor league of America, of which he (Hodnett) is president. As the republican majority in the Senate is no more pronounced on any subject than it is in its opposition to "bulldozing," Mr. Hodnett's request must certainly be granted. As misery loves company, the people of the South are consoled by the knowledge of the fact that not only is buildezing practiced even in the government departments at Washington, but that white men are its victims there.

THE NEW YORK Herald says: "From the hour when Lee surrendered at Appomattox to the present time, the American people have shown a capacity for mutual kindness and tender forgetfulness of past enmittes that has no parallel in history." Most people down this way think the capacity referred to is not mutual, but is restricted to the people of the southern half of the country. The New York Tribune, the acknowledged exponent of northern republican feeling, abuses the dead President of the Confederacy, and the republican administration breaks a rule in order to refuse to allow the flag of the department he created to fly at half-mast at his death, and even the Herald itself endorses the latter action.

SECRETARY PROCTOR says the flagrant affront he put upon the white people of the South by refusing to pay the customary re spect to the most illustrious of all his predecessors, their most distinguished fellowcitizen, clarum et venerabile nomen, was "promoted by that spirit of peace and good will that should fill the hearts of all our people." Mr. Proctor must think the people of the South are great fools, or else must be a great one himself.

PRESIDENT HABRISON now avows bimself a friend of the Blair bill. Mr. Hawley, one of the leading republican members of the Senate, says the avowal referred to is an error of judgement and comes at a time when public opinion has set decidedly more strongly against that bill. This difference bodes no good to the bill referred to, especially as a great many other republican congressmen agree with Mr. Hawley.

SECRETARY PROCTOR says he hopes his and Grievances will take up the contested refusal to lower the flag on the War Depart ment to half-mast "does not add to the sorrow of the family and friends of Mr. Davis." It certainly does not, but it just as certainly does add to the scorn and contempt with which the millions of friends of Mr. Davis regard anything Mr. Poctor may do or say.

THE COMMITTEE appointed to report on revision of the Westminster Confession have presented their report to the New York Presbytery. They advise such changes as will make it appear that children dying in infancy and heathen are not preordained or predestined to eternal dampation.

FROM WASHINGTON. Special Correspondence of the Alexa. GAZETTA]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11, 1889. Governor Lee of Virginia, who arrived here yesterday evening to attend the meeting of the Governors of the several States held for the purpose of promoting a congressional appropriation for a monument to the signers of the Declaration of Independence, is still here and was on the floor of the House to day with the other Governors, to witness the ceremonies attending the comwitness the ceremonies attending the com-Washington. The Governor attracted more attention than any other stranger on the floor. Governor Lee says ne and Governor Jackson of Maryland, who is also here, have practically agreed upon a settlement of the Hog Island oyster bed affair. There seems to be, he says, no doubt of reaching a satisfactory arrange ment of all the matters in dispute. Attorney Generals Ayers of Virginia and Whyte of Maryland are now engaged in examin ing maps, charts, and other papers relating to the subject, and the two Governors will meet again this afternoon.

The order to admit no one to the Capitol to-day except by card was strictly carried out, so there was no disagreeable crowd there as is usual on special days. The ser vices in commemoration of the first inaugution of President George Washington were conducted in the hall of the House, in which were assembled, in their respectively allot ted seats, the members of the House and the Senate, the President and ex President, the Justices of the U.S. Supreme Court, the members of the Cabinet, army and navy officers, the Court of Claims and Court of the District of Columbia, the diplomatic corps, the International American Congress and the Marine Conference, and the Gov. ernors of the States now here. Music was supplied by the Marine band, stationed in the lobby immediately behind the Speaker's chair. The galleries were well filled. The floor was crowded and presented a very im posing appearance. The oration was delivered by Chief Justice Fuller, of the U. S. Supreme Court, and was very generally ad mired. The benediction was pronounced by the blind chaplain of the house, Rev. Mr. Milburn.

Q lite a number of people, among them Senator Reagan, who was Postmaster General of the Confederate States, S nators Walthall and George, of Mississippi, General Lee and some other members of the House, Col. L. Q. Washington, and several other well known ex-Confederates, and some la dies, the latter wearing mourning badges, went from here to Alexandria to-day under the impression that services in commemo ration of the death and burial of the ex-President of the late Confederate States of America would be held there.

If the bill Mr. Morrill has introduced in the Senate shall become a law, the large and unsightly naval monument that now stands at the foot of the Capitol and ob structs the view thereof will be removed to the northwest part of the city, and be re placed by a handsome and graceful and unobstructive statue of Columbue.

Letter from Richmond.

[Correspondence of the ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE] RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 11 -The newspa per reporters failed to get the nomination of J. K. M. Norton as Judge of the Corpora tion Court of Alexandria by the democratic caucus Monday night. Everybody was so much taken up in the nomination for what attention was paid to the nomination of a judge for Alexandria city. In fact the nomination wasn't made until a short while before the caucus adjourned. The election will take place this week sometime, and Judge Norton will fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Smart.

Had Mr. K Kemper, of Alexandria, al lowed his name to be submitted to the democratic caucus he would have received a very flattering vote, and had be entered the race at the time Mr. Massey did he would bave given that gentleman, who was the successful nominee, a very tight race, and might have defeated him. Mr. Kemper made many friends among the legislators by his gentlemanly bearing and elegant man-

Mr. W. W. Scott, of Olange, received a larger vote before the democratic caucus than any defeated candidate. His vote was forty three, while Judge Flournoy, the successful nominee for the office of Secretary of the Commonwealth, received sixty eight votes. To show how well Judge Flournoy had his supporters organized, two weeks before the nomination he said that his vote on the first ballot would be sixty-eight. It is understood that several cities will ask the Legislature for authority to appoint held in Richmond yesterday, the annual re-

There will doubtless be a slim attendance at the Capitol to-day until half past one o'clock at which time the special order—the Jefferson Davis resolutions-will be called. Some of the legislators will hear Dr. Curry at the Second Baptlet Church, Dr. Hoge at the Presbyterian and Dr. Minnigerode at St. Paul's. These three distinguished ministers were warm personal friends of Mr. Davis and to-day they will each deliver an oration in respect to the mamory of the brought a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. The Boundary Question

Gov. Jackson, of Maryland, Gov. Lee, of Virginia, Attorney-General Wm. Pinkney Whyte and Secretary of State LeComte, of Maryland, met at the Arlington Hotel in Washington yesterday to discuse the disputed boundary between Maryland and Virginia on the H. g Island flats oyster bed, in the Potomac river.

Gov. Lee said the State of Virginia had passed a law granting Mr. Lewis certain rights on these oyster beds. Mr. Lewis had planted oysters there, and as Governor of the State he thought it his duty to enforce been commonly supposed, and that it is the law and protect Mr. Lawis, Mr. Lawis confined to an examination of the funds had a lease for several years, but of course be is called "the basement offices" that little had taken it at his own risk. The Governor said his idea when a coast survey officer was called in to locate the line was that it was simply to obtain information for the Legislatures of the States, and not to constitute the final settlement of the contro-

Gov. Jackson and Mr. Whyte both favored a prompt repeal of the graut to Mr. Lewis, conceding that he ought to have a reasonable chance to remove the oysters he had planted.

Gov. Jackson said he would ask that Mr. Lewis desist from dredging until a settle-ment was reached, so that he would not get all the oysters before it was decided wno they belonged to.

Gov. Lee thought that could be arranged easily enough, and Gov. Jackson then offered to withdraw his proclamation opening the beds if Gov. Lee would withdraw the Virginia police boat and maintain the present status until a final settlement is reached. This was agreed to and the conference adipurned until to-day.
